

A "History is Now" worksheet

Name _____

The principle: What kids your age are reading now will be history to people in the future.

List the titles of three books you like to read.

Do some asking around among other students in the class. List the titles of six books (or book series) that students your age are reading.

Choose one of the books (or series) from one of your lists. In a paragraph four or five sentences long, describe what that book is about. Explain it in a way that would help someone who had not read the book to understand what it is about. Be sure to include a sentence about why this book is popular with kids your age.
